Serra Orrios is one of the best preserved nuragic complexes in Sardinia. The village consists of a hundred circular huts and 2 temples built with a base of rows of stones and originally covered with branches. The ideal site to discover the 'urban' architectural evolution of the nuragic civilization, with a surrounding natural environment that makes the discovery even more evocative.

Serra Orrios,

S'Ena e Thomes

Sa Sedda e Sos Carros

The village of sa Sedda 'e sos Carros is set in the wild valley of Lanaittu, a spectacular natural background few minutes from Su Gologone. A nuragic complex of exceptional architecture and engineering, created at the time of metalworking and linked to the cult of water.

The Tomb of the Giants of S'Ena 'e Thomes is the most important Nuragic burial monument in Sardinia. Dating back to the Early Bronze Age (1800-1600 BC). The enormous stele, a granite slab almost four metres high is really impressive.

Tiscali

↳ Sa Oche and su Bentu

are some of the largest caves in Europe. The caverns are quite long and include spacious rooms up to 100 metres high, with stalactites and stalagmites, tunnels and floors covered in sharp crystals, in a scenery of crevasses, underground lakes and beaches of quartz sand.

The Corbeddu cave gets its name from a famous bandit who used it as his hideout for a long time. The grotto is 130 metres long and has three rooms. Here the most ancient findings of homo sapiens in Sardinia were unearthed.

↳ The Nuragic village of Tiscali It is situated within a large cave in Monte Tiscali. It consists of the remains of a number of round dwellings dating from the first millennium BC. The origins are mysterious as the building technique is different from the other Nuragic sites. It was probably inhabited in pre-Nuragic ages.
