The backdrop is provided by the Barbagia region, in the heart of Sardinia – a part of the island that is particularly rich in traditions, history, ancient olive trees and vineyards clinging to the slopes of the mountainous Supramonte district, where the air is fragrant with myrtle and rosemary.

And just 20 minutes' drive away lies the beach of Cala Cartoe, with its rocks, fine sand and crystal-clear sea; it all adds up to one of the most stunningly beautiful natural environments to be found anywhere in the world.

Hotel Su Gologone is here, surrounded by blue sky, red geraniums, hydrangeas, bougainvillea and prickly pears. This hotel is all about the tradition, art and culture of a part of the world that is at once rugged and smooth.

Every detail expresses the authenticity of this land: the furnishings and materials used are as Sardinian as they come, including juniper wood, ancient ceramics, terracotta and white plaster with periwinkle inlays – the same blue that is used to dye the traditional costumes of Oliena.

Incorporating the every essence of Sardinian culture: untainted nature, ancient customs, time-honored cuisine and great hospitality.
